Faure Accepts Humiliation To Gain Time

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

PARIS (UP)—The National Assembly overwhelm-y gave Premier Edgar Faure an implied vote of confidence on his Moroccan policies early today.

By a vote of 477 to 140 the ssembly approved a motion by he opposition Socialists which he 47-year-old premier accepted

It was a humiliating action for Faure to do this. By accepting the support of the 105 Socialist deputies, the bulk of his official opposition, he risket. the loss of his own right-wing majority the next time a crucial issue conves up.

LLABOARD With G. E. Mortimore

WE all have our worries. Some of us are tied in a knot wondering whether to buy a 24-inch TV

Some of us are wavering between pin-stripe or tweed. We are in agonies of doubt choosing between steak or salmon for supper. The indecision is turning us neurotic.

Other people in the world are worried about the next meal. As far as they know, there isn't going next meal. As far as they know, there tan't some to be one. Homeless mothers and children in certain countries would give thanks for a sack to cover their ribs. There are people with large-sized worries right in town. The Community Chest will help them. But in our zeal for the kind of charity that begins at home, we shouldn't forget the ragged and hungry ones of other lands, even though their cries sound faint in the distance.

This Halloween, Sunday school pupils will roam the Island with collecting tins for the world-wide "Save the Children Fund."

Here is a sample letter from the SCF administrator in Korea to Mrs. W. W. McGill, who runs the campaign in this area:

tor in Rorea to Mrs. W. W. McOil, who this the campaign in this area:

"Your parcels of clothing arrived . . safely. You may be interested to know where some of the clothing went. The day before your parcels arrived a woman came to us for help. She was starving and dressed in rags, and she had with her two small children, one of whom was paralyzed after poliomyelitis.

Yesterday I wrote with some disgust about the man who draws a blend of coffee and hot chocolate from a cloin-in-the-slot beverage machine.

Now it turns out that some of the more daring housewives have been mixing the same kitchen cocktail by hand for some time, and calling it "Gold Coast Coffee." A lady sends me a recipe for the stuff, clipped from the magazine "Better Homes and Gardens."

Gardens."

Ingredients are one cup instant cocoa mix; onehird cup instant coffee; four cups boiling water.
"Combine cocoa mix and instant coffee. Gradually add boiling water, stirring constantly. Pour into cups and then top with whipped cream or pass pitcher of cream. Makes six servings."

Why be timid? Might as well add some tea and buttermilk, too.

Current events: The new B.C. Electric building is a glass palace. Victoria city hall is a rundown pile. What a shocking contrast! It makes you wonder who has the power in this town.

For the Taxpayers, What?

TT is difficult to avoid a sense of disappointment over the result of the Dominion-Provincial tax conference. Even though the decisions of the gathering have yet to be reached, it is apparent that the Dominion and the 10 Provinces have come to the end of the fax-rental road without bringing into existence any clear path which in the nations interest they will be prepared to follow uniformly. Upwards of 150 leaders and technical experts in governmental circles met at Ottawa with seemingly not more in their minds in the main than deriving separate advantages from the situation; mutually impossible and without promise of either national unity or tax relief for the future.

As a successor to the tax conferences of 1941, 1945 and 1950, the 1955 addition of 1941, 1945 and 1950, the 1955 addition so far has been barren of a central solution to problems envisioned then, and now rendered more complicated by reason of Canada's swift population growth and industrial development. The Dominion said flatly it would not surrender a dollar of its-present revenues. The Provinces, differing in every degree among themselves, were uniform in asking for more; more money, more "sharing," more of everything, and this coupled with requests for lower federal returns. The two cases —and indeed there were 11 in all—do not meet. Much will rest now on what ultimate compromise can be worked out to bring apparent irreconcilable attitudes

There are only 15,000,000 people in the * There are only 15,000,000 people in the country, and their ability to pay taxes continues to be strained to the limit. Much of the argument at Ottawa turned on how to get more taxes from somewhere, the mythical "other fellow" who does not and never can exist. Meanwhile there have been disturbing overtones in the debate. Quebec, with a year-end treasury surplus of revenue over all treasury surplus of revenue over all ordinary expenses at March 31 last of $36,634,866, is held out as a "have-not" province. The Dominion refers to provincial income tax rights, which it was glad to rent for $325,000,000 a year, as secondary to the national interest. The Provinces suggest federal aid running into hundreds of millions. The picture is not

Much Ado About Little

NEEDLESS fuss is being made about A the civic tax on bicycles. Any parent who can afford to give a child a bicycle who can afford to give a child a bicycle can easily afford an extra dollar for the Initial registration and licence fee. Incidentally as civic officials have pointed out the yearly fee is not a dollar but only 50 cents, a fact which itself cuts the objection in half. Nor is it a matter of every child having a "right" to a bicycle; the only right involved relates to the parental blessing that might be given to possession of one. Right has nothing to do with the question.

possession of one. Right has nothing to do with the question. It seems an excellent and necessary thing to register bicycles, for their owners' protection far more than for civic gain. Administrative revenues in this connection are officially said scarcely to exceed the costs. For police purposes—and there would be squeals to high heaven if the police ignored stolen, mislaid or lost bicycles—the registration is imperative; and there is no valid reason why the adult taxpayer in general should pay for it. That is a family responsibility

It could be added that a bicycle on the streets is in some respects equivalent to a motor vehicle; it is certainly a decided factor in city traffic and often a most troublesome one. There can be no more absolution for bicycle owners than at present. It appears indeed that these juvenile riders are dealt with easily. Far from being exploited for civic gain or suffering the threat of having their bicycles impounded, not one has ever been summoned for failing to take out a licence. The mountain made out of this molehill shrinks to nothing right there.

The whole thing is netty; and it is even more petty to invoke it as an instrument in the next civic election. To suggest that a candidate should not be supported unless he favors the abolition of the 50 cents a year bicycle tax is to make a farce of serious voting responsibility.

Tardy Mail Delivery

SURFACE mail connections between the United Kingdom and Canada appear to have become tardy and erratic. Three copies of a British weekly publication to which this newspaper subscribes were which this newspaper subscribes were delivered last week. They were the issues for Sept. 1, Sept. 8 and Sept. 15. All arrived in the same day's mail, which means that the issue of Sept. 1 was exactly five weeks in transit. As the publishers are unfailingly punctual in their mallings it must be assumed that blame for the delay rests on the postal service. Because the waspeers were not post-

Because the wrappers were not postmarked there is no way of knowing at which end the pile up occurred, but judging from recent experience with other surface and second-class mail it would not be surprising if the Canadian post office department proved to be the one at fault. Since the all-up airmail service went into effect in the Dominion—with good results—a tendency seems to have good results-a tendency seems to have grown up to treat other mails as of little urgency.

We may be doing the department an injustice by saying that; but it is an impression widely shared by merchants and businessmen.

And this is, we imagine, a natural result of the farmer's way of life. For months every year he spends hours of every day in the open air. Even in this age of machines he has an active and vigorous routine. His diet is whole rous and in the tired and the just. It is not a regimen that runs to avoirdupois.

The isle, anomalously, may not be an isle but a hill, a valley, a busy city street even, but the association is similar, It is the tug of a familiar scene, especially that of childhood, which makes this song overflow its native heath to be savored in the memories of all who hear it.

The bard who wrote the "Islea" flied last month, Dr. Kenneth Mac-Leod, a distinguished but fragile figure of 84 years. As you might guess he was a Gael, and his song reflected all of the Celt's inner urge. Strangely enough it was not meant to be that way. Like the "Beer Barrel Polka," only in reverse, it was born of war.

"Roll Out the Barrel," you will remember, was the rollicking song that stirred enthuslasm and lightened marching feet in the days of the second war. It had been written as a Bohemian love song years before, the lament of a rejected suitor in fact, and it was revised and stepped up to a catchy wartime tempo.

"The Road to the Isles" had a contrasting origin. As a tune it was first heard in the Hebridean isle of Barra. The pipe melody was originally "The Burning Sands of Egypt" and was said to have been first played outside the Highlands by Scottish forces in the army of Napoleon during the African campaign. What they were doing in such company I cannot imagine.

In any case Dr. MacLeod was in vited to write martial words to the old tune as an inspiration to troops in the first war. He chose to do a thing else, to depict in verse the longing for a beloved homeland.

The troops would enjoy this even more since usually they get their fill of pep-talk tunes anyway. When far they like nothing better than The tears may not flow but the mood is exactly that of the old lady who had a wonderful evening at the conwith a handkerchief.

A Nation of Form-Fillers

By RICHARD L. THOMAS. Daily Colonist Correspondent

BRITAIN is rapidly becoming a nation of form fillers, form filers and form analysts. It is computed that more than 2,000,000 Britons—about 9 per cent of the ac-tive labor force—earn their livings from forms in one way or another, starting with the manufacture of the paper and finishing with the men in the salvage depot who pulps them down after audit. No one seems to have got down to the statistics of how many loggers are employed getting lumber for form making.

Strangely enough, and very much contrary to general belief, it has been shown that private industry is more addicted to forms than govern ment departments — and that many forms are unnecessary and still more demand much fuller information than to fewer and better forms.

Form filling has, of course, belargely automatic part of We fill up forms which apply for money orders at the post office; we fill up deposit slips at the bank; we fill in cheques to pay out money, we fill in cheques to pay out money, and if we are in buisness we spend quite a lot of time signing vouchers petty cash slips, requisitions and ex-penses vouchers. We receive chira for our morning coffee and lunch in fact there are very few transac tions left in life which can be com-pleted without some sort of form changing hands. Add to these stock sheets, delivery notes, order forms and contract notes and it is not aurprising that millions of people are needed to keep track of the millions

But are all these forms really They are useful and pos ably the life blood of the paper mer-chant and the printer. Hundreds of printers up and down the country do nothing else but print forms of one sort or another from receipts to pads for telephone messages, ac-count and invoice forms to cheques and deposit slips.

Obviously a lot of forms are essential, but many are not. If business efficiency experts instead of concen-trating on machines to handle forms cards more efficiently concen trated on ways and means of elim inating some of the forms, it is ssible that the productive labor force of Britain could be increased and costs of manufacture reduced.

After all, forms have to be paid for.

The first drive is towards more fittelligent forms both in regard to the information they require and the size of the form. Many forms, for size of the form. Many forms, for example, are held to be too large for their purpose. The standard Eng-lish business cheque form is six Inches by four inches. Is there any reason why it should not be reduced to half the size—the size many banks use for private pocket cheque books? * * *

Business is most concerned, how ever, with eliminating unnecessary labor. There is a move also to abolish endorsement of cheques. Some firms have already started their own cam-paign to save other people trouble by using "bearer" cheques and crossing them "account payee only." This invalidates the cheque to anyone ex-cept the payee and the only onus on the bank is to see that it is credited to the payee's account. Endorsement is unnecessary. But before there is any general alteration of commer-cial practice there will have to be a change of law and parliamentarians nd chartered accountants are at resent working out ways and means f effecting the change. A great deal of unnecessary work. and chartered acc is given to banks by the necessity to certify endorsements in certain in-stances, certifying credit to payee's account and similar processes which may be obviated by making them legally inferential. The government is looking especially hard into the working of the Post Office Savings Bank which on occasions has as many as 20,000,000 transactions in a eck. The Trustee Savings Banks e not far behind and the problem to reduce form filling without undermining security.

The business world is also greatly ncerned about the amount of labor they have to provide to imple overnment decrees. In a large fac-ory up to 200 clerks may be em ployed doing nothing else but work ing out income tax deductions from employees under the "pay as you earn" scheme, making up the returns earn" scheme, making up the returns for the income tax authorities, and putting national insurance stamps or cards for employees. The government makes no contribution to this cost. In addition statistical staff has to be employed to provide the government with statutory returns affecting everything from hours of work and rates of pay to the num with 55 persons aboard, includ-ing some of the most famous names of aviation, was fighting its way through a storm over France, 25 years ago last week.

The 755-foot hydrogen-filled airship, the largest in the world, was seven hours out of Cardington, England, on its way to Karachi. At 1.50 a.m., Greenwich Mean Time, on October 5, 1930, French ground wireless operators received a signal from the R-101 stating her position as a mile and a quarter north of Beauvais

The R-101 had crashed into the ground and burst into flames. In a few minutes the pride of Britain's air fleet was a mass of twisted gird-ers. Forty-six people were dead. ers. Forty-six people were dead. Seven survived, but two of them later died in hospital of terrible burns. It was, at the time, the greatest disaster in the history of th Among the dead were Lord Chris-ion amid the mourning of the world Nobody knew, then, that the hope of lighter-than-air flight on a large scale was buried with them. Ger many kept making Zepplins, and planed her faith on the Hindenburg

The general view is that Britain is being handicapped by its forms. Acute labor problems could be solved if some of the form filling army was demobilized and transferred to production, and if the costs could be eliminated there would be quite a dif-ference in the price of the manufactured product.

It has been computed, for example, that the average price of cashing a cheque in the United Kingdom is the equivalent of 13c. This is the charge represented in the bank statement and does not include the stamp duty on the cheque. It represents pay ment only to the bank for its services. Naturally it covers a lot of ices. Naturally it covers a lot of indirect benefits for which no charge is made directly from the supply of stationery to the monthly statement But anyone with a bank account in Britain will find that his bank charges average about 13c for each cheque drawn.

The first step in cutting overheads has been made by a big firm of chain store groceries. They have cut out credit accounts from October 1, and the rest of the trade is looking with interest to see the effect on business. Meanwhile the attack has been opened on forms. First: better, simpler and smaller forms; second: the elimination of all unnecessary

Nost noticeable change is the power—282 horsepower and tremendous torque—but this was to be expected.

Most pleasing improvement is the handling. A slight amount of oversireer is apparent—that is, when accelerating through a curve, the car tends to turn more sharply, rather than to straighten out, as is the case with an understeering car. This matter of oversireer has nothing to do with how far the steering wheel must be furned in the first place. It simply means that with an oversteering car the wheel must be backed off when accelerating around a bend, and with an understeering car the wheel must be backed off when accelerating around a bend, and with an understeering car the wheel must be lightened up.

DID YOU KNOW .. by Heavey's

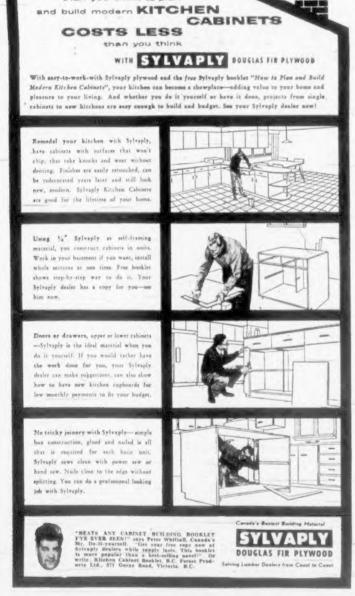

The most important weapon of the Roman soldier in early days was the pilum or heavy javelin. Useful in battle, they also were put to many other uses by the ingenious soldiers. They stuck them in the ground and covered them with branches for shelter against the elements. As time went by any pointed stake was called a pilum. As stronger structures were made the size of the supports increased. Now these supports are made of steel and concrete and wood. Driven into the ground THE PILE qives support to structures on soqqy land or over water.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A male wrestler was billed in the program as a woman . . The losing team in a rugby match was proclaimed the winner . . The prize in a wrestling match was mistakenly awarded to the loser.

These are a few of the complaints voiced today by umpire Kung Shih Sheng following the Taipei City athletic meet. He charged that the meet, held earlier this week, "broke all records for mismanagement and confusion."

Other complaints by Kung:

A volleyball match was cancelled after the contesting teams waited for two hours for the referee to show up. He never did.

The meet started 50 minutes late.

And when Mayor Kao Yu. Shu got around to announce the opening, the microphone was dead.

CHEVROLET IS THE SALES LEADER, TOO!

Latest figures show Chevrolet Sales for 1955 to be moving well ahead of its nearest competitor. In Victoria, too, more Chespolets have been sold than any other make in eight out of the first sine months this year adding up to a whopping 2-to-1 lead over its pearest rival. The tremediens volume of Chevrolet and other G.M. Sales enables Chevrolet to be proceed at a figure lower than any other car in its field and remember! The Dazzling, New 1956 Chevrolet will soon be here!

Women Begin Juesday

This Thanksgiving week end 1,000 Victoria women are making last-minute preparations for the residential Community Chest campaign when they will appeal to the citizens for help to be given those less fortunate. At least a great part of the money will go toward those needing help, but a part is also earmarked for such agencies as the YWCA and YMCA which help in building character in the young. There are 17 Red Feather agencies which will benefit from the drive. The women canvassers will open their campaign on Tuesday, October 11, and will continue the canvassing until October 22. They will cover 62 districts in all.

Masked Gunman Holds Up Monterey

By ALEC MERRIMAN

A masked gumman walked boldly into the Monterey restaurant last night, held up the cashier, and escaped with about $350 from the cash register.

"He came behind the counter where I was typing and flourished a gum at me," said Jean Ward, 2411 Quadra street, a few minutes after the 8 p.m. holdup.

"This is a holdup. Be quiet, Open the cash register," the bandit told her. She said he was masked with a strip of plastic across his face and had a moustache painted on his face with eyebrow pencil.

"I thought he was joking at first, but the gun looked as if it meach business," she said.

"I thought he was joking at first, but the gun looked as if it meach business," she said.

"They were really nice," he said. "" served them on the curb. There were two men in the front and two women in the back seat. The women said the food was good. The men had a clubhouse sandwich and a hamburger de luxe and the women had chicken kurls."
Witnesses believe the car drove from the drive-in stand around to the front entrance to stage the hold-up.
